She carried bride's roses and white sweet peas in shower bouquet. The maid of honor was gown in green tulle and white net and carried Opheleia roses. At a reception held after the ceremony the couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs. J. W. Feindel. The house was prettily decorated with maiden-hair ferns and roses and the ceremony was performed under an arch of ferns and white cut flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will spend their honeymoon on a camping trip to Pleasant Island, Me., after which they will live at Greenfield, Mass. The bride is a graduate of the Wakefield high school, class of 1908, and Malden training school for nurses, class of 1912. HOW APPENDICITIS CAN BE PREVENTED

Barre people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Ad-ler-ka, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This simple mixture removes such surprising foul matter that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. Ad-ler-ka has easiest and most thorough action of anything we ever sold. Cummings & Lewis, druggists.—Adv.

TRIBUTE TO VERMONT BEAUTY.

A Visitor in the State Describes It in Rhyme.

To the Editor:
A visitor to your state, I have learned to love its great natural beauty. It seems to me that your people do not appreciate the beauty of its hills, rocks, brooks, its wild flowers and the songs of its birds.

Every rock, every tree, every wild flower and every brook has its lesson for him who will read as nature intended him to read.

If my few lines, which will apply not only to one brook at Waits River but to hundreds of others, will help the boys and girls of your state to love the beautiful and wonderful works of nature about them, I shall be more than pleased.

Truly yours,
Frank H. Craig.

Waits River, Vt., July 21, 1916.

The Brooklet.
Little brooklet, as you flow,
With a murmur soft and low,
Through the shadow and the light,
Always moving day and night,
Happy, happy, you must be
In your journey to the sea.

In Vermont 'mong hills of green,
Springs to life your silvery sheen;
Only at first a little rill,
Tumbling, twisting down a hill,
Over a dam, under a bridge,
Dancing like a fairy midge.

Stories many you can tell,
Of woodsy things I love so well;
Of stately pines, of spruce and beech,
Of speckled trout within your reach,
Of flowers sweet in forest glen
Far beyond the haunts of men.

Of song of bird, sweet and clear,
Echoed back, now far, now near;
Of timid fawn and graceful deer,
Drinking with no signs of fear,
From their motley, pebbled edge
Shaded by the water-seed.

Little brooklet, best of all,
Though you are so very small,
You are true to nature's call,
And you're happy through it all;
Such's the lesson which you teach,
May it all of mankind reach.

May we all, sweet brooklet, clear,
Though our lives are sometimes drear,
Look beyond all sordid things,
And as thou, with fairy wings,
Strivest, gainst a hidden might,
May we strive for truth and right.

CIRCUS IN BARRE TO-MORROW

Cook & Wilson's Show at Trotting Park Afternoon and Evening.

It is this long continued attitude of mankind toward the lower animals and the questions that have recently been aroused by scientists regarding their mentality, that gives the visit of the Cook & Wilson wild animal circus to this city on Friday, July 28, a particular interest at this time. Naturally, the primary purpose of the Cook & Wilson show is to afford entertainment for the public and in this respect this great traveling institution is said to stand practically alone among exhibitions of its kind. Nevertheless, the question of whether or not wild animals think is answered to a great extent by the wonderful performances given by the trained wild beasts with the show. Those who have seen the Cook & Wilson animal circus say they "do everything but talk," and presumably they even talk in their own way. Under the direction of their trainers, tigers and pumas go through evolutions that would be impossible for unthinking beasts to remember; lions, bears, jaguars, seals, kangaroos, elephants, horses, ponies and other animals, wild and domestic, exhibit the most apparent intelligence in their work, and throughout the exhibition of "educated" beasts there is said to be unescapable evidence of calculation and reasoning. The performance is thrilling, but also scientifically interesting.

In addition to the trained animal numbers, interspersed with riotously funny comedy by an army of Merry Andrews, a mile-long free street parade will inaugurate circus day. Performances will be given afternoon and night.—adv.

Easy Way to Get Rid of Itching

Don't worry any more about that itching skin-trouble. Just get a jar of resitol ointment and a cake of resitol soap at any drug store. With the resitol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resitol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Choosing Your Shampoo Soap

If you select a soap that contains soothing, healing properties like the resitol balsams in resitol soap, you are not likely to have trouble with dandruff, loss of hair or itching scalp. Ideal for the youngsters' heads.

Spain as a Republic.

Isabella II. when thirteen years old was declared of age by the cortes in 1846, and after a stormy reign of twenty-five years was deposed by a revolution which began in the fleet on Sept. 18, 1868, and was joined by the garrison and city of Cadiz and by nearly all of Spain during the month. A provisional government was established and Marshal Serrano was made regent. The cortes voted for a monarchy on May 21, 1869, and after several offers of the throne had been refused it was finally accepted by Amadeus, duke of Aosta, who was proclaimed king on Nov. 7, 1870.

After an uncomfortable reign he abdicated in 1873 and was succeeded by another republic, which lasted for two years, when Alfonso XII, son of Queen Isabella and father of the present king, was elevated to the throne.

Artificial Indigo.

Artificial indigo owes much of its commercial success to an accident. Although synthetic indigo was first produced in 1870, it did not become a serious rival to the natural article until a thermometer was accidentally broken and the contents of the bulb ran into the heated mixture of naphthalene that was all too slowly being converted into phthalic acid, the basis of artificial indigo. It was then observed that the conversion became much more rapid, and from that day the use of mercury has played a big part in making artificial indigo a commercial success. The accident occurred after years of patient research, and it is now the boast of chemists that they are able to produce on a commercial basis a compound "exactly the same" as natural indigo.—London Standard.

Frederick the Great's Joke.

Among the embellishments which Berlin owes to Frederick the Great the "new palace" is the most conspicuous. This magnificent building was erected, it is said, to show Frederick's enemies that his many wars had not exhausted his exchequer. And further to show his contempt for the countries which had sought to crush him at the top of the cupola he placed a group of three women dancing together, the figures representing Catherine the Great, Maria Theresa and Mme. de Pompadour. The wrath of the two empresses was unbounded at finding themselves depicted in such an attitude and such company, so Frederick was able to congratulate himself on a thoroughly successful joke.
